Bernard Valonnes, Carole Jean

The author of Miss Boucles begins by saying, "I have received much encouragement from those who read my book, Miss Haut-Talons, four years ago, so I have decided to write a sequel entitled Miss Boucles."

The story continues in the Curle estate where Miss Haut-Talons ended. There is an entire village set deep within a privately owned park in rural England. This immense park is overseen by a fanatical feminist named Elsie Curle in the name of its real owner, her stepson Adrian Curle the 'hero' of Miss Haut-Talons. In the village live a number of wealthy young women and their women servants. These ladies, however, maintain a corps of pages, "each the slave of his particular mistress whose sole object was to feminize her young boy-girl and transform him into a complete girl. These boys, beautifully trained in smart feminine attire, were brought to this village to be punished and trained in the utmost severity . . . These boy-girls went about in tightly corseted fashion, their arched feet in feminine shoes with fantastically high Louis XV heels, and garbed in fantastic feminine costumes of a rather bizarre nature, as though garbed for a fancy dress party." The story itself deals primarily with the efforts of a Miss Vivian Dainty to domesticate and feminize her ward, the very handsome and effeminately pretty Rose-Dorian Buckles. When Rose-Dorian is tossed out of his boys' school because the schoolmaster thought his personal beauty too distracting to the other boys, Miss Dainty's course of action was obvious. Poor kid, though. This turns out to be as much a bondage story as it is a transvestite one. Besides pretty clothing, handcuffs and leg straps are the daily lot of the lads in this book along with frequent beatings.
